
Graduate Certificate in Tele-Learning

THE DEPARTMENT OF LIBRARIANSHIP, EDUCATIONAL TECHNOLOGY, AND DISTANCE INSTRUCTION

The Certificate in Tele-Learning is designed to provide interested individuals an opportunity to learn the basic principles of distance delivery of classes, to manage distance-delivered classes, and to evaluate their effectiveness. The instruction for the certificate courses is internet-based. Students do not need to be on campus for this program.

The Certificate in Tele-Learning requires 18 hours of internet-based, online coursework.

EDTC 6010 Introduction to Instructional Technology
EDTC 6050 The Internet: Organization, Design, and Resource Discovery
EDTC 6060 Using the World Wide Web for Research
EDTC 6300 Introduction to Distance Learning
EDTC 7310 Instructional Strategies for Distance Learning
EDTC 7320 Web Teaching: Design and Development

Admission standards:

All applicants must have a baccalaureate degree from an institution accredited by a regional association and have an overall GPA of 2.5 on a 4.0 scale on all undergraduate work.

Admission procedures:

Complete the Application for Admission to Graduate Instruction and return it with (1) one copy of your official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate course work (sealed), and (2) three letters of recommendation from persons who can attest to your academic competence or ability to do graduate work. Application packets can be obtained by calling the Graduate School at 252-328-6012.

Satisfactory completion of either the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) or the Miller Analogies Test (MAT) is required. A student holding a masters degree from an accredited university is exempt from the entrance exam. Information on testing can be obtained from East Carolina University's Testing Center at 252-328-6811.

Contact Information:

Dr. Veronica Pantelidis
East Carolina University
102 Joyner East
Greenville, NC 27858
252-328-6621
pantelidisv@mail.ecu.edu