

Challenges of Maintaining a Community Sense of Place in Resort Communities and Regions

Mick Ireland
Mayor of Aspen Colorado

Speight 212

Wednesday, April 13, 2011

9:00 to 10:00 am

Mick Ireland is a past two term Commissioner for Pitkin County, Colorado, and currently in his second term as Mayor of Aspen, Colorado. He is one of the leading elected officials in the country in his knowledge and advocacy for useful and effective public policies to guide development in destination resort regions and communities particularly regarding effective planning for second home development. Mayor Ireland's insight, experience and message are of special use to developers and public officials, whether municipal, county or state.

Sponsored by:

The Center for Sustainable Tourism
Urban and Regional Planning Program, Department of Geography
Master of Public Administration Program, Department of Political Science