

Professor Kenneth Wyatt is currently filming a documentary that focuses on the people of western North Carolina. His documentary also explains the story of Eric Rudolph (the Olympic Park Bomber).

Professor Wyatt is passionate about “edutainment.” He defines edutainment as the ability to entertain as well as teach a lesson. He created his own edutainment through his award winning documentary Nigger or Not. In the future Professor Wyatt plans to do more theatrical films, educational films, lecture circuit films, and world wide films.

In Professor Wyatt’s opinion, being a professor is enjoyable yet time consuming. The biggest challenge that Professor Wyatt faces is when to cut his films and obtaining funding for his documentaries. He has traveled to various cities in NC and worked with myriad government officials to film his documentaries.

For his next documentary Professor Wyatt will focus on Blacks in the Confederacy. He enjoys watching HBO documentaries and his favorite films like Batman and Jack Custo under sea documentaries. Professor Wyatt lives by the quote “Film making is raising money and overcoming obstacles.”

<http://www.ecu.edu/cs-cfac/comm/faculty/Wyattprofile.cfm>