The Tar River/University Neighborhood Association (TRUNA) maintains strong relationships with the city, the university, and the community to ensure a safe and well-maintained neighborhood. The association has been well represented in city government for many years, and continues to be involved and effective.

If you would like more information about the association, please contact:

Visit our neighborhood.
Stroll the tree-lined streets to a play or restaurant. Ride a bike through Greensprings Trail or along the river.

This is what a neighborhood should feel like.

I love the diversity in our neighborhood. It is filled with creative, intelligent, wonderful people... ANN MAXWELL

the Tar River/University Neighborhood and the College View Historic District
The Tar River / University neighborhood continues to be a desirable place to live.

Like other historic districts across the country, it is within a convenient distance of a university campus and downtown/Uptown, making it very appealing to families, faculty, retirees, and students. The new thriving Uptown community is within walking distance, offering many interesting shops, galleries, restaurants, and events. East Carolina University’s cultural and sporting events are also within walking distance. Faculty can walk to offices, classes, and libraries. Families can enjoy the many parks in our area. Even the chancellor has his home in our neighborhood.

Among the many attractive features of this small southern city neighborhood, you will find:

- charming, well-built homes in an historic district
- bed and breakfast for guests within walking distance, hotels within minutes
- numerous shaded sidewalks with curb cuts for wheels
- a cohesive neighborhood of families, professors, students, retirees
- an active neighborhood association (TRUNA)
- excellent schools
- numerous churches of all denominations
- greenway trail for woodsy walking or biking
- an airport just five minutes away
- Uptown events: Fourth of July fireworks on the river, Piratefest, Art Walk, and the International Festival
- libraries within walking distance
- an outstanding medical facility

Life in our neighborhood is much more than a succession of days. It combines convenience to both the University and Uptown Greenville... ED HARPER

I love the full green trees, houses with character, and the neighbors are characters. I wouldn’t live anywhere else... MARTY PRIDDY
