

East Carolina University
Departments of Anthropology and Classical Studies present:

SENSES OF SPACE AND PLACE IN 6TH CENTURY JORDAN

Photograph by Megan Perry

a lecture by:

Traianos Gagos

Associate Professor of Greek and Papyrology
Director of the Advanced Papyrological Information System (APIS)
University of Michigan

In 1993, archaeologists working in Petra, Jordan uncovered a unique cache of carbonized papyri dating to the 6th century A.D. Dr. Traianos Gagos, Director of the Petra Papyri Project, has sought to translate these documents and understand them within the archaeological and historical context of Byzantine period Petra. Dr. Gagos presents the latest findings of the papyri and how they describe the transformation of lived spaces into meaningful places.

NOVEMBER 1, THURSDAY
7PM
FLANAGAN 265