(Humanities Credit and Cultural Diversity)
Instructor: Professor J.I. Middleton
Times offered: MTWR 3:30 PM to 5:30 PM
*This course will explore ethnicity and race in the United States by examining our own experiences as well as literary and scholarly explorations of the concepts. Our goal will be to develop a critical framework that will help us better understand our multicultural society.

2010 Fall Semester

ETHN 2001: Introduction to Ethnic Studies
(Humanities Credit and Cultural Diversity)
Instructor: Professor Carla Pastor
Times offered: TR 9:30 AM to 10:45 AM
*This course provides a comparative analysis of minority groups in the U.S. The class focuses on social, cultural, historic, economic, and political aspects of each group's experience in America. Social and cultural sources of bias and discrimination are explored through literature, philosophy, and film.

2010 Fall Semester

ETHN 3501: Ethnic Images in Hollywood Film
(Humanities Credit and Cultural Diversity)
Instructor: Professor J.I. Middleton
Times offered: MTWR 3:30 PM to 5:30 PM
*In this class, we will look at images of ethnicity in American popular culture by closely examining Ethnic-American images in film. The class will include readings in ethnic studies, and we'll also screen a few international films. We will discuss both the modern and historical contexts for the films in class.
