Promote your research lab and the work you do!
Have you considered creating a research lab website to promote your research? Having a research lab website is an excellent way for students to find you for research experiences and opportunities, potential collaborators to find you, and for individuals across the university to learn more about your work. Our college has several active research lab websites. To learn more about creating your own website visit here.

Five questions with…
Dr. Jamie Perry from Communication Sciences & Disorders is spotlighted in the Five questions with… on the Office of Research website for the month of March. Learn more about Dr. Perry’s research and what she likes about working at ECU!

Highlights
• Congratulations to Jamie Perry! She was recently awarded an NIH R21 grant, “MRI-Based Modeling to Understand Anatomical Basis of Velopharyngeal Dysfunction”. Dr. Perry serves as Co-PI on the project with her colleague, Dr. Silvia Blemker at UVA.
• Research Days across the college!
  • The CSDI Research Day included posters and presentations by undergraduate, master’s, and doctoral students. Congratulations to the students who presented and their faculty mentors!
  • The Novel Approaches in OT Practice Annual Research Symposium included student thesis presentations, and student research posters & presentations to the students, faculty, and the community. Congratulations to the students and their faculty mentors!
  • The PT 8th Annual Research Day included student posters and presentations in two different tracks: Clinical Research & Biomedical Sciences and Human Movement Analysis. Congratulations to the students and their faculty mentors!
