What’s your impact?

About a year ago, the CAHS Research Update introduced impactstory.org. In that time, impactstory.org has changed a lot! You can now create an Impactstory profile by syncing it with your ORCID account. Impactstory is an open-source website and allows researchers to explore and share the online impact of their research. It is an opportunity to identify potential collaborators, expand your research connections, and strengthen your grant application impact statements. Learn about your research buzz (all the talk about it), engagement (how people are interacting with it), openness (how easy it is for people to read & use), and fun (achievements & kudos).

Five questions with…

Dr. Stephen Leierer from Addictions and Rehabilitation Studies is spotlighted in the Five questions with… on the Office of Research website for July-August. Learn more about Dr. Leierer’s research and what he likes about working at ECU!

Highlights

- Congratulations Dr. Lakshmi Kollara! She successfully defended her dissertation, “Variations in craniofacial and velopharyngeal structures among individuals with 22Q11.2 Deletion syndrome” under the direction of Dr. Jamie Perry in the Department of Communication Sciences & Disorders. Dr. Kollara plans to continue her research and is pursuing a post-doctoral research opportunity.

- Congratulations Jane Trapp in Physician Assistant Studies! She is a collaborator on a newly funded $2.5 million HRSA Primary Care Training and Enhancement Grant (Dr. Baxley in SOM is the Program Director). The project is a collaboration among PADP, Nursing, Medicine to train and prepare learners for the continuing changes in health care.
