

Doctoral student money ! ! ! ! !
Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders
At East Carolina University

Announces $24,000 per year research assistantships with out-of-state and in-state tuition waivers for individuals seeking the Ph.D. degree in Speech-Language Pathology, Communication Sciences, or Audiology, beginning Fall 2008. The Department has moved to a new 227,000 square foot facility which contains 16 new laboratories for CSDI research with state-of-the-art equipment. The faculty's research is currently supported by public, private, and NIH funding.

Contact: Monica Hough, Ph.D., Director of Graduate Studies, Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, (252) 744-6090, Houghm@ecu.edu