

Jeni Miller

Jeni graduated in 2001 and now she resides in Washington DC. She is not married yet, but she is engaged. Class memories include studying with her roommates, group outings, and gross anatomy. After graduation, she was moved to Australia for two and a half years and worked there as a rehab occupational therapist. Currently, she is working at Suburban Hospital in the in and outpatient facilities, but is planning on moving to the West Coast in the near future. She's also worked in a school for children with learning disabilities, as a consultant working in injury management, workers compensation, completing medico-legal assessments and functional capacity assessments. Her favorite moments were traveling around Sydney. Her specialty areas are sensory integration with autistic children, hand therapy and ergonomics. Her hobbies are photography and surfing. She hopes in the future to open up her own practice and do more traveling around the world using her occupational therapy skills.
