

Kara Wilt Compton graduated with the class of 1999 and spent her first years as an OT working in an outpatient rehabilitation facility. However, she felt limited in that position in terms of what she could accomplish in the “whole picture” of caring for her patients, so she made the decision to return to school for a Masters degree to be a physician assistant, which she will graduate from this coming August. She is currently living happily in Charleston, South Carolina with her husband, Major.
