

Nicole Whitaker Galletta graduated with the millennium class of 2000 and spent the first four years of practice as the Lead Occupational Therapist at a private school for kids ages 4-21 with moderate to severe disabilities. She is currently working in early intervention doing evaluations and treatment with kids 0-3 with their families, and is also working on her Masters Degree in Assistive Technology at George Mason University in Virginia, expecting to graduate this summer. She is married, spends lots of time renovating her 1940's house about 7 miles outside of D.C., and she has 2 cats and a lab puppy named Cooper.
