

Rebecca Schmidt

Rebecca graduated in 2000 and she is currently living in San Diego, CA. She is married to Robert and they have two children, Zachary and Kathlynn. Her fondest memories are of getting on the elevator after gross anatomy and having everyone move away from you because of the smell. She is currently working in San Diego City Schools. She has also worked in a pediatric private practice, pediatric outpatient clinic, and the NC and FL school systems. Her favorite moment on the job has been teaching a child that had half of his brain removed (hemispherectomy) due to severe epilepsy, to write and then write in cursive with an appropriate grip and also tie his shoes! Rebecca is also a volunteer advocate for military families with children that have IEP's or needing IEP's. She helps families get the information they need. Her family is involved in ADA and JDRF activities and school advocacy/training has been her passion since her son was diagnosed with diabetes. She advocates for the rights of children with diabetes all the way to meeting with congressmen in Washington DC. In the future she would like to have a private practice focusing on visual perceptual and handwriting for the younger children as a supplemental to school based practice.
