

Sandy (Skellie) Burns

Sandy graduated in 1982 and is living in Asheville, NC. She is married to Scott and they have six children and one deceased child. She remembers taking gross anatomy in the trailers on campus and getting to know everyone that first summer. Her greatest accomplishment since graduating is being the role of wife and mother. This includes her home schooling her children and her faith in Christ carrying her through the sudden death of her oldest child in 2001. She is currently working for the preschool program in Henderson County as well as seeing children ages birth to four years old privately through a clinic. She has worked for various school systems and she also tried home health a couple of times. Her specialty area is pediatrics, but she loves working with the entire family and classroom/daycare teachers to help the children succeed. Her favorite moments while out in the job field are the times when an autistic child hugs her or greets her at the door with a brief smile or a parent tells her that this is a “first” with a child (something that was accomplished in therapy). In the future she would like to achieve having her entire house clean in the same day!
