

A STATE IN MOURNING.

A whole State will be saddened this morning to read that North Carolina's best beloved and most distinguished son, ex-Governor Charles Brantley Aycock, died suddenly at Birmingham, Alabama, last night, where he had gone to deliver an educational address. We use the word "saddened" because that will be the feeling that will hover over every home in this Commonwealth. No man of this generation has been so beloved or has so deserved to enjoy the affections of the people as this golden-hearted gentleman. To gifts of the highest in ability and in eloquence, he added the most beautiful character and the sweetest spirit. He never won an honor by self-seeking or at the expense of another—every public position he held was given by the people who called him to service. He was ambitious only to serve and it required the persuasion of thousands of friends to induce him to enter the Senatorial race, and, when urged to press his campaign and to organize for victory, he declared if he had to win by any method other than the presentation of his principles he would not desire the high office. He had supreme faith in the wisdom and patriotism of the people. He had nothing in common with political machinery or with raising himself to position by overcoming a fellowman by exposing his mistakes. From the moment he announced his candidacy, he was less anxious about the result than his warm friends. He never doubted that when he had presented his cause to the Sovereign People that they would choose him if his election was best for his State and country. The readers of The News and Observer all know that this paper has believed that Governor Aycock would be elected to the Senate because it never doubted that, given the opportunity to send the greatest and best man in North Carolina to the Senate, they would fail to honor the State and themselves by electing him. But, engaged in the holy cause of Public Education, which gave him the name of "The Educational Governor," he has been suddenly called to a higher place in the Assembly of the skies. He was a simple-hearted believer in the Christian religion, he illustrated in higher degree than any among us the grace of loving his fellowman, and it is literally true that he shortened his life in service to his fellows. His love embraced men of all sections, all creeds, all races, and was broad enough to embrace all mankind.

The history of North Carolina since Vance "fell on sleep" was more powerfully directed for the betterment of the State by the life and service of Governor Aycock than of any or all of his contemporaries. This is not the statement merely of those who loved him. It will be the verdict of the State and of the Republic.

The whole State is in mourning for the loss of the noblest and ablest of its sons. His soul is at rest. He died conscious of the love of a great people, and today, when they understand their bereavement, the people of the State will have but one thing to assuage their grief—the happiness that they had given him every honor and had been ready to give him a Senatorial toga.

We live in deeds, not years, in thoughts, not breath;
In feelings, not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart throbs where they beat.

For God, for man, for duty, the most tires
Who thinks most, feels the noblest,
Sells the best;
Life is but a means unto an end,
The end
Dignifying men and end to all things, God.

"A Man Loved Among Men."

To the Editor: My first vote was cast for Hon. Charles B. Aycock for Governor. I shall never forget the eloquent address he made at Guilford Battle Ground during that notable campaign, and since that day have had a feeling of reverence and great admiration for this noble, distinguished and patriotic statesman. He made a strong and lasting impression upon the young men of North Carolina. His high ideals, strong intellect and magnetic and sincere personality made him a man loved among men. North Carolina will truly miss this grand and noble son.

His Message "To Go Forward."

To the Editor: In the death of ex-Governor Charles B. Aycock, the people of North Carolina will feel that they have sustained a great loss. In this country he had become known to many of our citizens when a student at the University, and his high stand in his class, and commencement address to us to expect for us, for the people and was broad enough and brave enough to be ever one of the people. His every speech marked him a leader among men; his great love of humanity inspired him to spend himself in service. His untimely death is a public calamity; his life, and his life-work for the education of the masses will prove an inspiration to the youth of the State and a blessing to her passing generations so long as the Commonwealth endures.

Personally I have lost a warm, generous friend who was ever true to me through a life-time of close and intimate association, whose life I shall never look upon again on earth. My love for him is not to be expressed in words; my grief at his death will abide with me through the remainder of my life.

W. R. O'B. ROBINSON,

"More For The People."

To the Editor: I think Charles B. Aycock did more for the people of North Carolina than any man of his day. He was a man, who gave more thought to the welfare of the people of the State than to his own personal interest.

A School Mate's Tribute.

To the Editor: The writer was a school-mate of the late ex-Governor Aycock during his early days, at which time he was impressed with the talent, ability and the marked earnestness of purpose and genuine sincerity of the boy, Aycock.

He has followed his career with gratification and interest till the curtain of the Great Beyond was drawn aside for his spirit, and believes that in the death of this great man that not only men and women of our State are bowed with grief but even the children for whose rights of education he constantly and zealously with words pertaining thereto upon his lips, died. The State suffers a great loss in the death of Aycock.

Ex-Governor Aycock Dies Suddenly in Birmingham

Sudden Death of Old North State's Distinguished Son Mourning by Whole State—Was Delivering
Address in Southern City

Beloved and Respected by all Tar Heels

The news of the sudden death of Ex-Governor Charles Brantley Aycock was flashed to the country last night in the following bulletin:

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., APRIL 2, (MIDNIGHT).—WHILE SPEAKING AT A LOCAL THEATRE TONIGHT FORMER GOVERNOR CHARLES B. AYCOCK, OF NORTH CAROLINA, FELL DEAD.

WINNIMONAH, W. Va., APRIL 2, (MIDNIGHT).—Charles B. Aycock of North Carolina, while speaking on "Universal Education, Its Necessity and Benefit," at the Jefferson Theatre, suddenly staggered back and fell to the floor. He fell was so sudden that those that were in attendance on the stage were unable to reach him before it happened. He was hastily carried to the wings and water sprinkled over his face. Attempts to revive him were futile and he expired almost immediately.

With Mr. Aycock on the stage were several famous southern educators and men of note. Governor O'Neal of Alabama had just preceded Mr. Aycock with an address on "Some Educational Problems". The North Carolina ex-governor had hardly delivered a fourth of his address when the sudden end took place.

Mr. Aycock was in the midst of a phrase when he reeled back and fell. His last words were:

"WHILE GOVERNOR OF NORTH CAROLINA I WAS CALLED UPON TO DELIVER MANY ADDRESSSES, OPTIMES I WENT TO CHURCHES ON SUNDAY AND WHEN I TALKED I ALWAYS TALKED ABOUT EDUCATION . . ."

The last word had hardly left his lips when the ex-governor was seen to totter backwards. The five thousand teachers in attendance at the theatre thought the movement as part of his speech, but they soon realized their mistake. They soon learned that the notable visitor had spoken his last words to them. The realization of the tragic event caused a gloom over the city as can not be recalled in the annals of Birmingham.

The first to reach the side of the stricken statesman was Governor Emmet O'Neal of Alabama, who a few minutes before had introduced Mr. Aycock as "The Educational Governor of North Carolina".

Yesterday morning the famous son of the Old North State had addressed 4,000 teachers on the subject of "Universal Education, Its Necessity and Benefit". He was in a perfect understanding with his audience and had created a great impression as an oratorical orator.

His remains were cradled in the establishment of a local undertaker awaiting arrangements for its shipment to North Carolina.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 2.—Gloom pervades upon the city on account of the tragic death of Ex-Governor Aycock, of North Carolina. The local press decries Alabama's educational relative to the letters and useful life of one of the best known and thought of sons of the South. The news of his sudden death spread like wildfire and were carried by teachers who had assembled in the Jefferson Theatre

THE TRAINING SCHOOL CLOSES.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES HAVE LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Ex-Gov. Aycock Delivers Fine Address—President Wright Makes Statements Concerning School.

The first session of East Carolina Teachers' Training school came to an end today and closed with appropriate exercises, beginning at 11 o'clock.

As Miss Bishop played a march on the piano the following passed down the aisles of the crowded auditorium and took seats upon the rostrum: President Wright with ex-Gov. C. B. Aycock, State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner, County Superintendent W. H. Bagdale, Hon. Y. T. Ormond member of school executive committee, Mr. F. C. Harding, chairman trustees Greenville graded school, Supt. H. B. Smith of the graded school, Rev. B. F. Haskie and Rev. J. H. Shorr.

The students of the school then entered, singing "Ho, for Carolina," as they marched in, taking seats in front at the conclusion of the song. The girls were all dressed in white and presented a handsome picture. The order of exercises was as follows: Prayer by Rev. B. F. Haskie them. Payment must be made in advance. If any of you expect to become great, you must pay the price in labor and self-denial in advance. You cannot obtain the magnificent view from the mountain heights until you have first toiled and suffered in climbing over the boulders in order to reach the top. The glory is worth the effort, but does not come without effort.

Universal education is necessary. You cannot get the best for your child without making it possible for me to get the best for my child. Give your child the highest education possible and put him in a community where no one else is educated, and what have you accomplished? Nothing. Your boy to make the best use of the education given him must be surrounded by those who have been given equal opportunities. Do we train a horse for speed by putting him on a track by himself? No. He must be put on the track with others in competition. Your boy is not going to run a race alone, but others around him must be educated to push him to development. Yes, we must educate everybody. If you want the best for your children, you must give the best to everybody else's children.

Following the splendid address, President Wright made some statements in regard to the school. He referred to the fact that to establish the school the town of Greenville and county of Pitt had contributed $100,000, and the State had appropriated $100,000 less than $25,000. Ground was broken and work on the buildings began July 2nd, 1908, and the first session of the school opened Oct. 5th, 1909. Six hall boxes were erected and while all the equipment for the school had been ordered in time, it had not arrived at the opening, but temporary arrangements were made for carrying on the work until the equipment arrived and was installed.

During the session just closed 172 students were enrolled and

GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION.

To be held at Wrightville Beach, June 8 and 9, 1914.

The annual meeting of the North Carolina Good Roads Association will be held at Wrightville Beach June 8th and 9th. This will be perhaps the most important one that the Good Roads Association has ever held and it is hoped that there will be a very large attendance. One session of the meeting will be held at a joint meeting with the North Carolina Press Association, which meets at Wrightville at the same time. This will mean a great deal to the success of the Good Roads Association meetings, inasmuch as the proceedings will be very extensively advertised through the press. An attractive program is being prepared, of which the following one has been arranged tentatively:

RECITAL AT E. C. T. S.

By Miss Bishop, Pianist and Mr. Austin, Baritone.

They were fortunate people who assembled in the auditorium of East Carolina Teachers' Training school, Thursday night, to attend the recital by Miss Fanny May Bishop, music teacher of the institution, assisted by Prof. Herbert E. Austin, instructor in the science department. It was a feast of music the equal of which one rarely has the opportunity of hearing. Miss Bishop is truly an artist on the piano, her touch, movement and interpretation being that of a master musician. The composers whose selections she used could not have wished for a finer interpreter, and her own impromptu number was the equal of any on the program. Mr. Austin's singing was superb. He possesses a rich baritone voice that is the soul of sweetness and tenderness.

The program as previously published was rendered, the audience expressing such delight that several encores were given. It was an occasion of real joy to every one present, and it made all feel deeper pride in the Training school and its splendid faculty.

President Wright introduced Hon. Charles B. Aycock, who delivered the address. In beginning Gov. Aycock expressed regret at the absence of Gov. Jarvis in whose mind this institution was conceived, and paid him a tribute as governor, U. S. minister and Senator, but said in old age he is doing his greatest work in the advancement of education and Christianity.

"I am going to make a speech which I expect some of you have heard before—if you have not the Lord have mercy on you."

Governor Aycock then took up his theme of education (he was known as our educational governor) and said he would repeat what he had uttered several times before, that he is in favor of educating everybody, and he would go even further and say he was in favor of educating everything. Education is not only good for people, but it is good for animals and vegetables. We call it improving the Irish potato when we increase its value as a food product, but we are only educating the potato. We call it breaking a mole when we go about training the young animal for service, but we are merely educating him. If education is good for potatoes and moles, it is better for folks.

If we educate everybody, does it mean everybody will be equal? Not at all. One star differs from another star in glory. It is not for us to say who will be greatest and who will be least, that is for God to determine. (But let's our duty to give all an equal chance and then let God choose the greatest from among them. If we educate everybody, some will continue to be ditchers and some will continue to spit nails.

These are big jobs and little jobs, but it should be the tall man to fill his respective sphere. If a thing is worth having, it must be paid for, and you must pay for them before you get want the best for your children, you must give the best to everybody else's children.

Following the splendid address, President Wright made some statements in regard to the school. He referred to the fact that to establish the school the town of Greenville and county of Pitt had contributed $100,000, and the State had appropriated a little less than $75,000. Six buildings were erected and while all the equipment for the school had been ordered in time, it had not arrived at the opening, but temporary arrangements were made for carrying on the work until the equipment arrived and was installed.

During the session just closed 172 students were enrolled and 87 per cent of these agreed to teach two years in the public schools, thus obtaining their tuition without charge. The departments taught in the school are English, mathematics, history, science, pedagogy, Latin, household economics, school government and music. The instrumental music department is not free, but this has been self-sustaining. Other departments are to be added next session.

President Wright expressed gratification at the work of the first session, and appreciation of so many people showing their interest by attending the commencement exercises. He also said that during the year members of the faculty had made addresses at 46 educational gatherings in this and other States.

In addition to the regular session, two courses of ten weeks each will be conducted for training teachers for better work in their schools. The summer course for teachers begins May 24th, and for this course more applications have already come in than rooms can be provided for in the dormitories.

East Carolina Teachers' Training School is already a great institution, and the people of the State have every cause to be proud of it.

Housekeepers of Greenville should not fail to come to the assistance of the Training school in providing sufficient boarding places for all teachers who wish to attend the summer school. Every room in the school dormitories is already engaged and there are other applications ahead, with more coming every day. The attendance at the summer school is going to be very large, and every teacher who wishes to come should be provided for. Our people owe it to the school to help in every way possible. Notify President Wright if you can take any boarders.
