

Dr. David White Named Interim Dean of TECS

On July 1, 2008, Dr. David White was named the Interim Dean of the College of Technology and Computer Science. Dr. White joins the College of TECS after spending more than 25 years at East Carolina's College of Health and Human Performance (HHP). He has served as the Department Chair for Health Education and Promotion for the last eight years. Additionally, Dr. White was the Associate Dean for HHP for three years prior to being named department chair.

“I am tremendously honored to serve as the Interim Dean of the College of Technology and Computer Science,” said Dr. White. “I have witnessed the remarkable growth and progress of this College from a distance and I look forward to being an active member of this team.”

Dr. White recognizes the importance of the UNC Tomorrow initiative on campus and believes the College of Technology and Computer Science is well on its way to accomplishing great things for ECU, the eastern region and state as a whole.

“The faculty and staff are already heavily involved in community and economic development in our area,” adds Dr. White. “Furthermore, our goal is to make sure each student and eventual graduate is prepared to survive in the 21st century.”

Dr. Glen Gilbert, Dean of the College of Health and Human Performance believes Dr. White is the perfect person for the College of TECS. “David White is a seasoned administrator that always works hard to insure his faculty has what they need to be successful and the students receive the best education possible within the resources available,” said Dr. Gilbert. “He is a fine administrator and a caring man and will make an excellent interim dean.”

Dr. White will serve as the interim dean until a search is conducted and the position is filled permanently.
