The Chancellor’s Leadership Academy has grown and evolved over the years, although the commitment to develop leadership capacity has remained strong with East Carolina University throughout its history. First realized as an intensive program for emerging leaders on campus, the Inaugural Academy of 2004, under the direction of former Chancellor Richard Eakin and Peter J. Kragel, Pathology and Laboratory Medicine, opened the door to new opportunities for high potential faculty and staff to work closely with university leaders in developing leadership potential. These pioneers paved the way for what continues to evolve as the Chancellor’s Leadership Academy today.

Margie K. Boyd, Risk Mgmt & Insurance
Rhonda P. Brown, International Affairs
Alton R. Daniels II, Chancellor’s Office
Edna E. Denton, Pathology and Laboratory Medicine
Jennifer L. Hodgson, Child Development and Family Relations
Joanna M. Iwata, Student Involvement
Jeffery W. Jarvis, School of Music
Max C. Poole, Graduate School
Catherine A Rigsby, Geology
Becky Vaughn, Human Resources
Katrina L. Walker, Psychology
Reginald W. Watson, English
Marvin E. Whitehurst, Physiology
William A. Wooden, Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery